

Handwritten text in a cursive script, likely a continuation from the reverse side of the page. The characters are densely packed and flow across the top of the page.

Main body of handwritten text in a cursive script, occupying the central and lower portions of the page. The text is organized into several vertical columns, with some lines starting with larger characters that may indicate new sections or paragraphs.

Handwritten text in the top right corner, possibly a title or a specific section header.

Vertical columns of handwritten text on the right side of the manuscript, likely providing commentary or interpretations related to the hexagrams.

Main body of vertical handwritten text on the left side of the manuscript, continuing the commentary or providing further details.